

How We Help

Every day, 275 children are diagnosed with cancer worldwide, roughly equivalent to the load of 7 school buses. The average age for these children at diagnosis is just 6. These young patients often spend about half of their lives in the hospital.

Families seeking treatment at specialized cancer centers frequently confront challenges related to travel, lodging, living expenses, and treatment costs. Despite these hurdles, there is hope. KCCF plays a vital role in alleviating the financial and emotional strain caused by this heartbreaking circumstance.

We stand by children battling cancer throughout their journey!

Our Story

Elana was only 7 years old when she experienced firsthand the physical and emotional toll of spending 15 grueling months in the hospital, enduring 9 cycles of chemotherapy, and undergoing 15 surgeries. She and her family juggled between two hospitals for one and a half years.

Her parents put their own lives on hold to stand by her side every step of the way. On the day of her final chemotherapy treatment, as she prepared to leave the hospital for the last time, she realized that while her own battle had ended, the fight for countless children and families was far from over. This motivated her to start KCCF to be there for children battling cancer through their journey.

Elana's Goal: KCCF Home

A vital aspect of our vision is to acquire a residence in New York, near top-tier hospitals to provide essential lodging and swift access to the hospital for children undergoing treatment and their caregivers. Swift access to the hospital
